The “Molnija” (Lightning) watchmaking company was founded in 1947 and to this day continues to bring together the best watchmakers throughout Russia. The company is centered upon a commitment to producing watches and calibers of the highest precision. Our watches are the symbol of reliability, accuracy, and an unshakeable reputation. Our chronographs are designed for aeronautical application, stand up to extreme temperatures and pressure, and for decades have served as a crucial link in Russian aviation.

The historical roots of the company reach back into the 19th century and trace back to the legendary American watchmaking firm Dueber-Hampden. Dueber-Hampden was founded in 1877 through a merger with the Wright Brothers’ factory, the very brothers heralded as the inventors of modern aviation. Dueber-Hampden existed for more than 40 years and to this day continues to be recognized as a symbol of American precision engineering and watchmaking. The company was a major player in the growing American economy and has made its mark in history as the largest American watchmaker.

AChS-1

Although the great depression led to the end of production in the USA, due to an agreement between the USSR and the United States this one of a kind technology was purchased, shipped, and put back into production on the First and Second Watchmaking Factories in Moscow.

During the Second World War the First Watchmaking Factory was evacuated from Moscow to the Urals, and in 1947 resumed production as the firm "Molnija". By the end of the 1940s the firm was producing aeronautical timepieces and chronographs for the defense industry. The production of these timepieces has become the main task of the factory ever since. The history of the firm is deeply intertwined with the history of Russian aviation. First appearing in the cockpit of the legendary MIG-15 jet fighter, our timepieces quickly confirmed their reputation for quality, and by the 10th year of production the factory was producing over 30 thousand specialized watches, and our first aviator's watch became widely known.

In addition to specialized production, the factory also perfected timepieces for the civilian sector, such as pocket watches and interior clocks. It was these models that allowed our company to become one of the most famous in Russia, as well as in the USA, Germany, Turkey, Austria, and even Switzerland

We continue to carry out this legacy even today. Our cases and mechanical components (including balance wheels and springs) are produced in-house. We also do finishing, painting, case plating, dial printing, assembling, and carry out quality assurance. We continue to develop, test and launch production of new calibers, a major move for the company was the relaunch of the 3603 in-house caliber.

WEAR AN AVIATION CHRONOMETER WATCH ON YOUR WRIST

The production of the legendary aviation clock AChS-1 began in the distant 40s. They were first installed in the cockpit of the most massive jet fighter in the history of the MiG-15 aircraft. The reliability and quality of AChS-1 were confirmed by the pilots as soon as possible and already in the 50s the Molnija factory produced more than 30 thousand special clocks a year.

Due to the quality, reliability and accuracy even in extreme conditions, the AChS-1 clock has become the most popular model of special time measuring devices for the aviation industry. A variety of AChS-1 watches are installed on a wide variety of equipment, including the MiG-29 multirole fighter, the Ka-31 radar helicopter, the Tu-22M3 long-range bomber, the Tu-95MS strategic bomber, the Tu-214 passenger aircraft, and the Night Hunter attack helicopter Mi-28, the world's largest cargo helicopter Mi-26 and many others. Even the name AChS-1 has become a household name for pilots in relation to any aviation clock. Today, the Chelyabinsk watch and clock factory Molnija presents a collection of wrist watches AChS-1, so that not only pilots, but all fans of aviation can touch the legend of Russian aircraft construction.
